INTRODUCTION

The marriage entries here published are contained in Volume Three, Four and Five of the parish registers of St. Mary's, Banbury. This is the only ancient parish church of Banbury, and remained so until 1846, when the parish of South Banbury was created. Neithrop, Calthorpe, Grimsbury, Wickham and Huscott are all within the parish.

Volume Three of the registers is the last to include baptisms and burials together with marriages; as in the earlier volumes they are in separate sections. In conformity with Part One 'New Style" dating, starting the year on 1st January, has been used throughout. In fact "Old Style", starting the year on 25th March, was followed in the original until 1752. The volume runs from 1724 to 1800, though in compliance with Lord Hardwicke's Marriage Act the marriages cease in 1754.

This Act "for the better Preventing of Clandestine Marriages", brought to an end the popular custom of couples from nearby villages marrying in the local market town: of which Banbury is a good example. The Act restricted the marriage to the parish of either bride or bridegroom, after due publication of banns or by means of a marriage licence. The Act also required parishes to record marriages in books of printed forms, which provided for much more information than in the former manuscript registers: the signatures of both parties, at least two witnesses, and the officiating minister; the home parishes of both parties; their marital status; and often the man's occupation. [1] It should be noted that these requirements were not invariably complied with.

Volume Four, 1754-1769, is thus in printed form, with the publication of banns incorporated in each entry. These are only recorded for marriages taking place in the parish.

Volume Five, 1769-1790, is also of course in printed form. There is an unused section for publication of banns, followed by the marriages section, which is fully used. The entries are numbered, but most unreliably.

After 1754 the witnesses of marriages are included. However the parish clerk, first Robert Barnes, later Timothy Barnes and finally William Rusher, was very frequently a signatory. To save valueless repetition their names have therefore been omitted.

Signature by mark has been indicated by asterisk. Officiating clergy are listed on page 139.

The Bishops' Transcripts have been compared with the registers, and any discrepancies noted in parentheses.

As Banbury was a Peculiar, marriage licences come under Buckinghamshire instead of Oxfordshire. All Banbury entries in A.H. Plaisted's admirable typescript "Index to Buckinghamshire Marriage Licences" have been checked, and the frequent additional information included in parentheses. Although the Index runs from 1680 entries relating to Banbury only appear from about 1737 and only intermittently at first. Copies of this Index are in the Bodleian Library and the Buckinghamshire Record Office.

The Banbury Monthly Meeting of the Society of Friends has kept registers since about 1660. The occurrence of Quaker marriages recorded in the parish registers does not appear to extend into the 18th century. No attempt therefore has been made to correlate these. Although other non-conformist registers exist for Banbury from the mid-18th century these were only for births or baptisms, and deaths or burials, not for marriages.

The entry on 7th July 1790 is significant as being the first marriage to take place in the Dissenting Meeting House. It was here, until September 1797, that the Anglican services were held, while the sorry business of the demolition of the old church and the erection of the new one took place. The date of the previous entry, 12th April, is the same as that of the Vestry Meeting at which the shocking decision to rebuild the church was taken. A letter in the Gentleman's Magazine for July 1790 from "Veritas" states "The fine old Church here is now shut up, and devoted to destruction! Public service has long been stopped, and all the pews, etc., taken out."[2]

Indexes have been made to personal names, place-names, and trades and professions. This onorous but essential task has been undertaken by Mr. R.C. Couzens, a member of the Society of Genealogists, as it was for Part One.

The style of Part One has been followed as closely as possible, and it is hoped that this condensed form remains intelligible without wasting space on repetitive verbiage. The uncommon abbreviations are as follows:-

B. = Banbury
Lic. = Licence
(b)otp = (both) of this parish
(b)ott = (both) of this town
wid. = widow or widower
b. = bachelor
sp. = spinster.

As before the transcribers are most indebted to the never-failing co-operation of the Reverend R.P.R. Carpenter, Vicar of Banbury, by whose kind permission these registers are published.
